

TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 23, 1901.

The farmers in the American bottom will give the right of way and $20,000 in money and labor to the C. & O. Company, which will throw up a levee for its track high and strong enough to keep out the Mississippi floods.

The flow of gold from Europe to this country having resumed, it is likely to continue until late in the autumn. There is now about $6,000,000 in gold in transit, which will arrive in New York within the next two weeks.

The young and pretty wife of Francis Dudley, a New York merchant, killed herself with a revolver at St. Cloud, N. J., Saturday. Her father is a Broadway lawyer, and the young couple were married in great style about a year ago. She killed herself in a fit of passion or insanity, caused by her husband refusing to let her ride in her basket phaeton, instead of the covered buggy which he had provided, fearing that it was going to rain. A person who would commit suicide for such a cause is better off dead than alive.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S probable death before many hours was announced by a dispatch in the amphitheatre at Chattanooga on Tuesday last. (One who was there says: "An audible groan rose from the great audience. The Jubilee Singers unannounced sang in their most affecting tones 'I Walk Through the Valley of Death in Peace.' A most fit and feeling prayer for divine aid to the patient and support to the people followed, and a soft supplicating hymn by the Jubilees, and there was an end to the services. The people were literally bowed in grief.")

NEXT to the flood Guitens, the man most despised in the United States is Bill Morrison, of Ohio, who declared that he wished the president would die of his wound. It was such a wicked wish that Captain Cook, an old soldier who was standing by, slapped the said Morrison's mouth, for which he was promptly fined for assault, according to the statutes of Ohio for such cases made and provided. Then a 1-cent subscription was started for Cook's benefit, not so much to relieve him of his fine, for that was only $32, but to testify the donors' appreciation of the patriotic act of the resolute Captain Cook, and their contempt for the dastard Morrison. Over 80,000 people have already sent 1 cent each, and the donations still continue to pour in with no perceptible decrease, until it begins to look as if Cook would become a rich man and famous all over the union, while Morrison's name is inseparably linked with that of Guitens'. It was an unlucky and wicked remark for Morrison to make, and the slapping was a profitable job for the loyal Captain Cook.

THE New York Commercial Bulletin estimates that the total wheat and flour available this year for export from the Atlantic ports will be 54,000,000 bushels as against 160,000,000 last year. This will make a difference of revenue to the trunk lines from transportation of about $25,000,000. There will also be an equal decrease in west bound freight, as the purchasing powers of that section will be correspondingly reduced unless prices are enhanced. It is very probable that this latter will be the case to a considerable extent, though not enough to compensate for the short supply. By a lowering in rates larger supply will be tempted eastward from that which would ordinarily be used by the farmers themselves. From the same cause the portion which would otherwise go by water, either through the lakes and Erie or Welland canals, or by the Mississippi River to New Orleans, will go east by rail. California and Oregon will have 66,000,000 bushels for export, which will doubtless be shipped by the Pacific. This curtailment in our export trade and transportation business must of course be taken into account in all estimates of this next year's probable outcome. The crops of the last three years have been exceptionally large, and could not be expected continuously. Increased sales of other products than wheat will, to a considerable extent, make up for the deficiency in that crop, and for the remainder, the country will simply have to be reconciled to losses, but to be content with more moderate profits than it has enjoyed for the past two years.

CLEARLY if the naturalization laws are anything but empty forms, this man Hartman is not eligible to American citizenship, and he is doing a good deal toward preventing naturalization papers from ever being granted him by applying for them now. If he were to keep very quiet for a term of years, it might come to pass that he would be forgotten and that he could manage to get himself naturalized without anybody knowing or particularly caring one way or the other. But if he keeps on, as he is apparently disposed to do, making a noise and bragging about his murderous enterprises, the prospects that he ever will be naturalized are decidedly slim.—Philadelphia Press.

THE "STILL HUNT" IN POLITICS.

How the Phrase Came to be Adopted by Politicians.

From Candidating; or, Old Times in the South-west.

The method of private electioneering by going from house to house, or attending such gatherings unattended by an opponent, was called electioneering on the still hunt. In pursuing the wild game of those regions two methods were adopted. Sometimes the hunters went in large parties, with horses, hounds and horns, and pursued and killed their game by these public and noisy demonstrations. At other times they went alone and quietly through the fields and woods, came upon their game noiselessly and killed it by stealth. This latter method was called by the people "the still hunt." In like manner the politicians had two methods of electioneering, as already described. The one was by gatherings and public speeches; the other was by these more quiet and private measures to which they appropriated this old phrase from the hunter's vocabulary and called "the still hunt." I remember on one occasion hearing two candidates for the office of sheriff address a crowd in one of the wildest regions in the southwest, each in advocacy of his own claims. One of them was quite an effective and the other a very indifferent speaker. In conversation with the former, at the conclusion of the discussion, I told him that, judging from the speeches, and the responses they received from the crowd, I thought his chances must be altogether the best for securing the election. "Ah," said he, "it won't do to judge by the speeches or to depend upon them to secure an election. My opponent is the hardest sort of a man to beat. He is powerful on the still hunt."

Some Encouragement, After All.

Hon. George W. Julian, who was a member of congress for many years, beginning his career in the lower house while Webster, Clay, Benton and other eminent men were still in the senate or house, has written some interesting reminiscences of those days, in which he shows that the men of that day were not all "civil service reformers." He says:

"Nor was the personal morality of members more to be commended than their political. The vice of intemperance was not, as now, restricted to a few exceptional cases, but was fearfully prevalent. A glass of wine could sometimes be seen on the desk of a senator while engaged in debate, and free use of intoxicating drinks by senators was too common to provoke remark. It was still more common in the house, and the scenes of drunkenness and disorder in that body on the last night of the last session beggared description. Much of the most important legislation of the session, involving the expenditure of many millions, remained to be disposed of at that sitting; and as a preparation for the work a large supply of whisky had been deposited in a room immediately connected with the hall of representatives, which was thronged by members at all hours of the night. The chairman of the ways and means committee became so exhilarated that he had to be retired from his post, and some of his brethren who had been calling him to order in a most disorderly manner, were quite as incapable of performing business as himself, while Order had sought her worshippers elsewhere. The exhibition was most humiliating, but it now pleasantly reminds us of the wonderful changes which have been wrought by thirty years."

MR. TILDEN is at it again—not wrecking railroads or puffing up a full-blooded Jeffersonian Democracy—but fastening himself on his party with a view to 1884. He thinks he can take the trick this time, for he sees where he played the wrong cards in 1876. He does not publicly say what his error was, but he must realize that when he tried to cipher himself in through the Southern returning boards, he fell into a very grave error. With the aid of his active lieutenant, Manning of the Albany Argus, he has set up the rural contribution to the coming state convention. He hopes to placate and win the anti-Tilden Democrats by giving them two good places on the state ticket. This much accomplished, he expects, through a great Republican gap, which he is able to discern, to carry his ticket through at the polls. The first two acts being successfully played, Tilden is to be the Democratic candidate for governor next year. Again he is to triumph through Republican dissensions, it being understood that Republicans are to continue to dissent as long as it may serve Mr. Tilden's ambitious purpose. Elected governor of New York in 1882, nothing can snatch from him the Democratic prize in 1884. Having reached this point, it is his intention to set in motion before the election that wonderful machinery which he set going after the election of 1876. The essential difference between the old plan and the new seems to be that this time he will endeavor to have himself elected on election day, as being safer than to wait until the race is over, and then try to buy the judges. Such a scheme will, of course, be one of countless details, but the mere outline is sufficient to show that Mr. Tilden has not lost his ambition nor his wonderful keen taste for "boss" politics.—Philadelphia Press.

CLEANINGS.

The Canadian apple barrel is said to be one-fourth larger than the Yankee article.

Inquiry among the wholesale oyster dealers elicit the fact that oysters will be dearer this winter, partly for the same reason that peaches are dearer, because of the exceptionally severe winter of 1880-81.

Senator David Davis has sent from his Bloomington timber lands to Atlanta, Ill., a white oak log to be put in the monumental log cabin that will be dedicated in a few weeks at that place. Every old settler in the community is expected to contribute a log.

Good Health directs attention to the danger of using fruit cans with zinc tops, which are liable to poison the contents from the formation of poisonous salts by the action of acids from the fruit on the zinc. Jars with glass or porcelain tops are safer to use.

The spot where Stonewall Jackson fell is marked by a rough block of white flint quarried in the Wilderness. It stands three feet eight inches high and is two feet ten inches in breadth. Its surface shows dents and scars, where the pilgrims have scaled bits of it as relics; and all around are smaller pieces of hard rock that have been used as hammers with which to crack it.

In England when a man is on a drunk he is "on a fool," in Chicago he is "on a hoorah," in St. Louis he "has a dash too much up his nose," in Kansas City he is "ginned up for all that's out," in St. Joe "the benzine has the upper hold," in Omaha he is "on it bigger'n an Injun," in Denver he "along a bowl too much," in Cheyenne "the duffer's got it in the neck," and in Leadville "the galoot is on a roarer agin."

A new idea in the way of sleeping-cars was exhibited in Rochester recently. Soft canvas stretchers take the place of ordinary berths, and so cleverly are these stowed away that one would think himself in a drawing-room car, unless otherwise informed. The other appointments of the car are of the same high order as far as ease and beauty are concerned. Each of the twelve sections has two plate glass windows, and the seats for use in the day are very comfortable.

Vanderbilt's New Mansion.

From a New York Letter.

It will be a good many months yet before Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt's magnificent mansion on Fifth avenue is ready for occupancy. All the work is so elaborate that even the least part of it takes a great deal of time. The exterior is neither as imposing nor attractive as one might expect to find, after reading any of the descriptions written up from the architect's plans. The flat surface of the wall gives the whole of it rather a dull look, which, at a short distance, is hardly relieved by the fine carving and scroll work on various parts of the stone. As the stone itself is the ordinary brown stone, common to all parts of New York, there is nothing particularly striking in the outside effect. The building is, in fact, rather plain, much more so than they are on the adjoining block, which will be occupied by Mrs. Vanderbilt's eldest son. In this respect it may be regarded as reflecting the owner's character, for Mr. Vanderbilt is not a showy man by nature by any means, the most nobly thing about him being those rather stringy side whiskers which the comic artists make the most of in their cartoons. Whether Mr. Vanderbilt is particularly well fitted up inside or not, this department is not prepared to say, but the inside of his new house certainly will be. No expense is to be spared in the fitting up and decoration, at all events. The smallest thing, as well as the largest, must be of the very best. An order was given the other day for silver plated bath tubs. A nickel plated bath tub is generally considered good enough for the ordinary millionaire, but when a man has a hundred millions to his name, the wonder is, not that he must have a silver plated tub to bathe in, but that he is satisfied with anything less than a gold one.

TELEGRAPHIC.

STILL ON THE BRINK.

The Condition of the President at Noon To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23, 12:30 p. m. The President continues to take by the mouth and retain an increased quantity of liquid food. At the morning dressing the wound looked well and the pus was of a healthy character. The mucus accumulations on the back of the mouth on account of the parotid swelling, is less viscid, and now gives but little trouble. Pulse 104, temperature 98.9, respiration 18.

BLISS AND REYBURN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23, 8:30 a. m.

The President slept the greater part of the night, but awoke at frequent intervals. He has taken since last evening a larger quantity of liquid food, by the mouth, than in the corresponding hours of any day during the past week. The use of nutritive enemata continues at long intervals. The parotid swelling is unchanged. Pulse 100, temperature 98.4, respiration 18.

BLISS, AGNEW.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22, 4:10 p. m.

Unofficial—Dr. Bliss at 4 p. m. said to a representative of the associated press that the president had had a much more favorable afternoon than yesterday, and was doing fairly well. He continues to swallow nourishment in the shape of milk porridge and koumiss without difficulty, and has in the opinion of the surgeons had food enough to-day to sustain his strength. He suffers no further annoyance from the secretion of mucus in his throat, and is entirely free from pain. He asked Dr. Bliss this afternoon what he thought of his condition, and the doctor replied that if he could keep down nourishment enough he would get through all right. The president then inquired how long it would be if he should make favorable progress before he could take a trip on a steamer or go to Mentor. The doctor could not, however, give him a definite reply. None of the president's symptoms are worse this afternoon, and some of them are better. His condition continues critical, but his attendants think there is a little more reason for encouragement.

6:30 p. m.—Official.—The president continued to take nourishment in small quantities at stated intervals during the entire day. He had no return of nausea or vomiting. Enemata are also retained. The wound is looking well, and the work of repair is going on in all portions exposed to view. The pus discharged is healthy. Pulse now 110, temperature 100, respiration 19.

11 p. m.—Unofficial.—Soon after the evening examination the president went to sleep and slept continuously for two hours. The fever has gradually abated, and his pulse has fallen to 102. Dr. Boynton coming recently from the sick room reports that the president seems slightly better than at the time of the evening bulletin. He has swallowed to-day about 20 ounces of liquid food, and 18 or 20 ounces by enema. As far as his ability to take nourishment is concerned, his condition is better to-night than last night. In other respects it is substantially unchanged.

Midnight.—Unofficial.—Since 11 the president has rested quietly and comfortably, and at this hour is asleep.

The mansion was closed to visitors at 11:30, everything then wearing hopeful appearances. A Western associated press man calling at that hour was informed that the president was quietly resting. He had slept two hours this evening and his pulse was down to 104. No examination for temperature was made after the evening dressing of the wound. The members of the cabinet who came early in the evening left for home at 10:30, feeling somewhat more hopeful than last night. Secretary Lincoln said that while they were not strongly encouraged, they were not discouraged.

Lowell, Minister, London: The president has been able to swallow and retain about twenty ounces of liquid food to-day, showing a better state of stomach, but his general condition is serious if not critical. He is weak, exhausted and emaciated, not weighing over 125 pounds. His weight when wounded was from 205 to 210 pounds. The failure to regain strength is one feature which gives special apprehension.

BLAINE.

2 a. m.—Unofficial.—No material difference has been observed by the attendants since 11 p. m. Since midnight he has been asleep and rested well.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—While the alarm of yesterday has somewhat abated, the anxiety over the condition of the president at this hour is still very great. There has been no vomiting since yesterday evening, nor is any trouble in that direction anticipated at present. In point of fact the stomach appears to be gaining slightly in strength every hour. It is reported in a very favorable condition to-day by all the doctors in the case. He repeatedly asked for food and drink during the afternoon. About fifteen ounces of liquid nourishment was administered in the ordinary way before 1 o'clock. The patient appears to be in a feverish condition, and frequently calls for water to quench his thirst. The phlegm in his throat has been less troublesome to-day, according to medical reports, than it was yesterday or the day before. In other respects the condition of the president remains about the same as yesterday. Very little progress can be said to have been made, speaking in a general way.

It is admitted by the doctors that the case is still critical, and they are anxiously waiting the development of the next two days before anything definitely can be ventured as to the future. Their anxiety appears to hang upon the condition of the parotid gland inflammation, and as to its probable suppurative. It is feared greatly that the patient's weakness and debility are such as will make suppurative dangerous. Were he enjoying ordinary strength and health, the policy of the medical attendants would be to bring about suppurative as quickly as possible by the aid of punctures and a lance. Under the circumstances, however, it has been their aim and their greatest effort to keep it down and thereby prevent suppurative and drive it back into the system, if possible, till he was able to bear it. Notwithstanding all these efforts, they have been unable to accomplish this desirable result. The glandular swelling is prominent to-day about the same time it was yesterday, but it is said to give less pain and annoyance. Dr. Boynton is of the opinion that it is even reduced somewhat, though he says not materially, and that if suppurative should commence now it would be less dangerous than upon yesterday. It is expected that if suppurative sets in it will be to-morrow or Wednesday. It may possibly be delayed still another day. When its prevention is no longer possible in the opinion of the surgeons, the pus will be liberated by an incision. This will be the most severe test the patient will have undergone during the past two weeks. It has been a steady fight between the coming on of the crisis and the toning up of the president's stomach. Dr. Boynton, when asked what the result would probably be upon such an incision of the gland in the neck, replied that it was impossible to say what that end might be, that it would be possible for the inflammation to extend to the interior of the ear and destroy that organ, and it might seriously affect the bones of the face in the vicinity of the irritation, and further than this there were other possibilities which it was needless to suggest. Dr. Bliss gave it as his opinion to-day that they have the swelling of the face pretty well in hand and don't anticipate any serious results from it. He thinks that it will suppurate to-morrow or the day after. "At least four or five days," says Dr. Bliss, "and we will know what to expect from the swollen gland." He admits that the only danger apparent at present is that the president may die of exhaustion after the operation, in case the stomach can't be made strong enough to counteract the natural drain by the double suppurative of the wound and the proposed incisions of the neck. He thinks, however, that the president's stomach has greatly improved in the last twelve hours, and that he will be able to master the difficulties as they severally appear. He is as confident as ever that the president will pull through, notwithstanding all the complications of the case. Dr. Bliss says that while the case is quite critical and serious, he has seen a great many cases equally as serious during the war, where men lay for months upon their backs with just such complications and have yet in the end recovered. He feels by no means discouraged, and believes that the president has still a good foundation for the hope which he expresses of his recovery.

In Memoriam.
At a regular meeting of Central Lodge No. 136, I. O. O. F., held at their hall on Monday evening, August 22, 1891, the following resolutions of condolence on the death of Bro. John W. Twomey were adopted:

Resolved, By Central Lodge No. 136, I. O. O. F., that while we do not the least mourn for our brother who has passed from us, yet we do mourn for the loss of a brother who was ever open to a brother in need, and whose energy was exerted for the welfare of the order; a friend and companion whose presence will be missed in the lodge room and social circle.
Resolved, That the heartfelt sympathy of this lodge be extended to the family and those who were bound to him by the nearest and dearest ties, in the hour of their affliction.
Resolved, That our lodge room be draped in mourning for the usual period of time, and that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the lodge and a copy thereof be furnished the family of our deceased brother and to the city papers and the Old Fellow Herald for publication.

The W. C. T. U. and the Fair.
The following was sent out last evening with a request to publish the same:
DECATUR, ILL., Aug. 4, 1901.
Be it Resolved, That the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Decatur, Illinois, do hereby request of the Agricultural Board of Macon county, that it prohibit the sale of beer, or any intoxicating drink whatever, upon the grounds used for the Macon County Fair, and that it be enforced. Further, that the Union most earnestly begs that no premiums may be offered upon fermented wine.
Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be at once transmitted to the Board and a favorable reply solicited. Also, that a copy of the resolutions, together with a copy thereof of the Board, be furnished the city papers and the Chicago Signal. Mrs. Wm. J. Brown, Pres't.
M. H. SANDERS, Sec'y.
DECATUR, ILL., Aug. 16, 1901.
Miss CLARA M. TAYLOR, Pres. Sec. W. C. T. U. The resolutions enclosed, was duly received. Will say in reply there will be no meeting of this character previous to the opening of the fair, the day of our county fair, and therefore there can be no action taken by them before that time. I have, however, had your resolutions read, and have been instructed to state to you in reply that there will be no premium offered on fermented wine at the coming fair. Very respectfully,
MILTON S. THOMAS, Secretary.

THE LOCAL JUSTICE.
Two State and Two City Cases—Miller Attempts to Give Notice to the State.
DIDN'T GET AWAY.
In Justice Albert's court on yesterday afternoon John O. Miller, who has been employed by Mrs. Camper for a number of months, had a preliminary hearing for making a deadly assault on Noah C. Estlin, the drayman, with a stove iron Saturday evening, August 18th, near Paddock, Burrows & Co.'s Bank. The witnesses for the people were Noah Estlin, L. Burrows and J. D. Hallett, who testified that Miller had thrown the stove iron in the manner heretofore described in these columns. Miller was recommitted to the county jail in default of $500 bail, to await the action of the December grand jury. On the way to the jail Miller made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the custody of Marshal Hewes, but he was brought to a standstill by the appearance of the officer's revolver. He had gone about 25 feet when he turned his head and saw the revolver pointed at him. When asked what he meant by starting off in that manner, he hung his head and blurted out, "O, I'm in fun!" Had he gone one leap further Miller would have been carried into the jail on a shutter.
A SERIOUS CHARGE.
This morning Zach T. Blaine appeared in Justice Custer's court and swore out a state warrant for the arrest of his brother-in-law, E. B. Eicholtz, whom he charges with violating the state law in using a seine in fishing having meshes smaller than is laid down in the statutes. Blaine charges that the offense was committed on Saturday last, and has had subpoenas issued for R. T. Davis, A. C. Corman, Charles Williams and Isaac Lunsford as witnesses. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Harris. The penalty for violating the fish law by using an illegal seine is a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50 for the first offense, and not more than $100 for the second offense.
The case has been continued for trial until eight o'clock on Tuesday morning, August 30th.
THE SAME OLD STORY.
On motion of the defendants' counsel in Justice Albert's court this morning, the famed and long drawn out case of the City of Decatur against Ann Houston and Amanda Kitchen, was again continued for trial until Tuesday, Sept. 6th, two weeks hence—all on account of the serious illness of Amanda Kitchen, whose condition is still considered extremely critical. It is not likely that she will die, but the attending physician avers that she must remain quiet and receive the continued watchful care of Ann. Some of the witnesses are nearly out of patience with the repeated delays, and numerous faithful spectators hoping to hear some rich developments at the trial, have grown weary with climbing the stairs only to be disappointed.
ON TRIAL BY JURY.
The case of the City of Decatur against Mrs. Maggie Nalle, O. B. Norton and Mr. Nalle, has been on trial by jury in Justice McGorray's court to-day, and was still undecided at 2:30 p. m. The parties are charged with violating the city ordinances.
"Mr." Beale in Jail.
The alleged quack doctor, Alonzo W. Beale, whose bail was fixed at $500 for his appearance at the December term of court, failed to furnish an acceptable bond on Saturday evening, and he had his liberty until last evening, when Deputy Sheriff Maury, armed with a mittimus, arrested the old gentleman and gave him quarters at the county jail. Mr. Beale, since his removal to Decatur, which has been comparatively brief, has been boarding with Maggie Nalle on East Wood street.
Accident—A Circus.
A correspondent at Macon writes under date of to-day that Ross Nichols was unloading hay was thrown off his wagon, and by the fall had his right wrist broken and the left dislocated. There were about 1,000 people in Macon this forenoon to witness the grand parade of Hildard & DeMotte's circus. The correspondent says "it was grand."
Answering Postal Cards.
Some people are mean enough to pester those against whom they have a grudge with insulting and "give away" postal cards sent through the mails, but it is not known that any such spiteful bipeds reside in Decatur. To correct this growing evil Postmaster General James has issued the following order, in answer to requests for instructions on the general subject of answering postal cards: "When any one is annoyed or expects to be annoyed by postal cards sent from any particular place, or from any known persons, he may direct the postmaster at the point named to destroy all postal cards addressed to him or cards from any person named so addressed, and so far as the discharge of the duties of the office permit sufficient examination, the postmaster should comply with the request. The same request may be made of the receiving postmaster. The direction to the postmaster should be in writing, and should be filed for preservation."

Queen Victoria and Max. Garfield.

From the New York Times.

The womanly solicitude expressed by Queen Victoria in regard to the president's condition has been fully acknowledged by Mrs. Garfield. Beneath all considerations of statecraft or national comity the sympathy of the woman who has known sorrow and bereavement with another who stands in the shadow of widowhood will awaken a responsive thrill throughout the homes of two great nations. Nor should the quiet, unobtrusive heroism with which the president's wife has met her great trial, and the admirable self-command which she has displayed amid the alternations of hope and fear that have attended the successive stages of the president's case be lost on the women of either hemisphere. There is a prevailing disposition to associate hysterical and noisy expressions of grief with the manifestation of deep feeling, and to accept feminine prostration and helplessness as one of the natural adjuncts of the sick chamber in which a husband or a father lies at the point of death. Among the many lessons to be gleaned from the sorrowful episode in the white house, perhaps not the least valuable is to be found in the proof that the most sympathetic and womanly nature may be united with steadfast hopefulness in the presence of crushing anxiety and perfect self control in face of irreparable loss.
